

FOR DESERTION AND CROSS-CRUELTY

Four Divorces Granted by Judge Curtis in Superior Court
—Three Wives and One Husband Were the Plaintiffs—Motion List Matters All Went Over.

Four divorces were granted by Judge Curtis of the superior court at the short calendar session of the court held in New London Friday. All were uncontested. The court came in earlier than usual, opening at 9 o'clock to get the divorce matters out of the way.

Mary E. Dwyer of New London was divorced from Patrick Dwyer of parts unknown. The ground was desertion. Mrs. Dwyer's maiden name was Mary Swanson. She was married to Dwyer in 1908 and the desertion occurred in April of the following year.

John Swanson, father of Mrs. Dwyer, testified to his daughter being deserted by her husband.

Augusta Weeks of Noank, aunt of Mrs. Dwyer, testified in corroboration of the statements of the other witnesses.

Mrs. Dwyer was given custody of the only child, a girl named Marie. Lubchansky appeared for Mrs. Dwyer.

On Account of Cruelty.
Maud Joseph of New London was divorced from William Joseph of East Lyme. The ground was intolerable cruelty.

Mrs. Joseph told of many acts of cruelty she suffered at the hands of her husband. She said her married life had been very unhappy because of her husband's actions.

Philip Jeffrey told of Mrs. Joseph's coming to the Jeffrey home in New London to see Mrs. Jeffrey, now dead, and said that her husband had put her out. He said he had never witnessed any acts of cruelty on the part of Mr. Joseph, but had heard that Mrs. Joseph was maltreated by her husband.

Mrs. Joseph was allowed to resume her maiden name, Maud Smith. The divorce was granted in 1913.

Captain Samuel Mills Divorced.
Captain Samuel Mills was divorced from Jeanette Mills of parts unknown. The ground was desertion.

Captain Mills said he is employed as a steamboat engineer and in that capacity resided at Northport, N. H., when he was first married, in 1906. In 1909 he went with his wife to Rowayton to reside with his parents. Returning one day from a trip, witness said he found his wife had left him. He said he went to Rowayton, hoping to find his wife there, but did not.

Captain Mills said he has never seen his wife since and has never heard from her. He said his wife was going away had never been explained, but he thought she objected to living in Rowayton.

Mrs. Emma Mills of Rowayton, mother of the plaintiff, told of her daughter-in-law leaving Rowayton. Witness said her son provided property for his wife and gave her no reason for deserting him.

Mrs. Mills said her daughter-in-law came to Rowayton last summer on an excursion and made a short call at the Mills home, making no mention of the desertion.

Susan Gell of Rowayton and William J. Brown of Rowayton, cousins of the defendant, gave corroborative testimony.

Butler vs. Central Vermont road, and J. H. Butler vs. Central Vermont road, in which the plaintiffs moved to have the cases placed on the jury docket.

WAISTS AND NECKWEAR.
Dainty Devices Which Add to the Effectiveness of the Easter Costume.

Important features of the Easter display this week are found in the waist and neckwear departments. In waists there are many attractive novelties in chiffon, white over colors, silks, both Japan and crepe, lace, marquisette and lawns.

Tailored waists are in the main, simply made, the majority with Byron collars, this both in silk and linen. On dressier waists there are insets of rich lace, much hand embroidery, or touches of gay Balkan colors.

Some especially fascinating neckwear is offered, in silk or cotton crepe collars, with fetching frills, dainty flower knots, cute ideas in button fastenings, etc. There are collar and cuffs with embroidery in soft pastel shades. A revival of our grandmother's time is the velvet neck of arm band of narrow black velvet with flower embroidery in colors.

And speaking of flowers, a popular novelty of the season is the tiny French hand box containing knots of the most realistic flowers, to be worn with street or house costumes.

Try Cascarets; they immediately sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food from the bowels, and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is full of sour bile—your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation.

WOMEN WILL ATTEND.
From All Over the State They'll Go to Hartford Tuesday.

Women from all over the state are planning to go to Hartford Tuesday for the hearings on woman suffrage before the joint committees of the house and the senate. The hearings are to be held in the chamber of the house of representatives, and the case for the suffrage will be presented by all the prominent workers in the suffrage cause in Connecticut. None but Connecticut men and women will be heard next Tuesday for the plan of the Connecticut Suffrage association is to have the case entirely in the hands of its own members, assisted by members of the Connecticut League for Woman Suffrage.

After the hearings the Hartford Equal Franchise league will keep open house at the woman suffrage headquarters, No. 24 Ford street, midway between the capitol and the railway station. Tea will be served there for the out-of-town visitors, and opportunity given for a rest before train time for the women who have journeys to make.

His evening's score was 820 and Schütz was second with 780, moving up from sixth to second place. Pendleton went down from third to sixth place. The evening's scores follow: Pettis 820, Schütz 780, Larsen 760, Hallisey 745, Optiz 745, Treat 720, Underwood 705, Ledger 680, J. Jordan 670, Bailey 675, Pendleton 615, A. Jordan 535.

With but three more nights of play Pettis is practically certain of first place, while second place may go to any one of a half dozen players. Pettis is awarded the first three men and on the close of the tournament there will be a banquet.

In Honor of Verlaine.
The other day the admirers of Verlaine made their yearly pilgrimage to the Luxembourg, there to lay the pedestal of his monument a memorial wreath of flowers. This pious duty performed, the cortege adjourned for lunch in an adjacent hotel. It was a distinguished gathering, which counted among its numbers three recently crowned heads—Paul Fort, prince of letters, Hans Ryner, prince of story-tellers, and X. de Puyas, prince of song-writers. All went well till it came to the champagne and the toasts. It was M. Natanson who jangled the harmonies of the morning. As a banker and the founder of the Revue Blanche, M. Natanson ought to be known to be seen, perhaps, but certainly not to be heard. But what did the banker do but get upon his hind legs and talk short, or rather hand, in other words, M. Natanson gave at length and with unctious his professional views on the uses and abuses of poetry. The poets expected were furious at his lack of tact. Was this the time, they asked loudly and indignantly, for such a sordid subject to be introduced? The president, M. Loubetier, tugged at the orator's coat tails, but in vain. The air was thick with insults, and a gentleman named Vanderpligh was heard to state himself "entirely at M. Natanson's disposition." M. Natanson rendered his card. M. Vanderpligh refused it, and, taking liquor glass at his adversary's face. In a moment the room was in an uproar. Poets, savages eyed and long-haired, leapt on chairs, gesticulating wildly. At last the voice of Paul Fort made itself heard. "I protest," he shouted, "that we never meet again to honor the memory of Verlaine, for we have proved our unfaithfulness to him." And as the banquet ended in sorrow and shame.

A telegram from Teheran to the Berliner Tageblatt, of Berlin, announces that the council of ministers has granted to Russia a concession for a line of railway from Deschula to Tabriz. It is also stated that Russia has been granted the right of working coal mines and petroleum wells on either side of the railway. The concession possesses considerable economic importance.
